Dr. Brad Harrell

Director of MSN Programs at Loewenberg College of Nursing Nurse
Practitioner, Ripley Medical Clinic
Greater Memphis Area

Summary

Dr. Brad Harrell is a DNP-prepared acute care nurse practitioner, faculty member, and academic leader. He currently holds an appointment as a Clinical Associate Professor at University of Memphis' Loewenberg College of Nursing. He received a BSN and MSN with an emphasis in nursing education from University of Memphis. He received a Doctor of Nursing Practice with an emphasis in acute/critical care advanced practice from University of Tennessee Health Science Center and is nationally board certified as an Acute Care Nurse Practitioner.

Dr. Harrell was a trauma nurse, nurse educator, charge nurse, and wound care nurse in the trauma center at the Regional Medical Center at Memphis (The MED), now Regional One Health. His doctoral inquiry explored risk factors for abdominal compartment syndrome and their relationship to mortality in trauma patients. He currently practices as an ACNP at Ripley Medical Clinic both in the clinic and by making house calls.

Dr. Harrell teaches undergraduate and graduate nursing programs. He primarily teaches graduate nursing education courses, and undergraduate medical-surgical courses. He has taught pharmacology, pathophysiology, gerontology, leadership, foundations, health assessment and skills.

Dr. Harrell is an active member of the Tennessee Nurses Association. He currently serves as District 12 President and is a member of the State Presidents Council. He is an active member of the American Nurses Association and served as a Content Expert for the American Nurses Credentialing Center. He currently serves on the American Association of Colleges of Nursing's Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion Group.
